

Cancellation of Researcher Team Cards at the National Archives

In response to a major theft of records by a private researcher from the research room at our College Park, Maryland facility, the National Archives and Records Administration (NARA) has evaluated its research room rules and procedures. As a result, we are ending the practice of team cards and sharing of record pulls by researchers.

Effective immediately, no new team cards will be issued.

Existing team cards will all expire on March 30, 2018.

As of April 2, 2018, only one researcher name is permitted on a reference service slip (NA Form 14001), and records may only be used by the individual whose name is on the reference service slip.

For questions, contact Ann Cummings at ann.cummings@nara.gov.